

DaaS to the Desktops

Workers are struggling with higher bills and commuting costs, and they want their employers to step in and help.

Employees have learned they can engage and be just as productive working from home, and as fuel prices continue to increase, new research from Citrix reveals many are questioning whether the benefits of being in the office outweigh the time and money associated with commuting. Click here to read more.

To read the article, please visit ZDNet.