

Citrix App Protection helps secure remote work

The current pandemic has forced some employees to access corporate data and applications through their personal devices, leaving the possibility that malware could capture important information. Citrix Systems is hoping its Citrix App Protection, which is now generally available, will help companies address the issue.

To read the article, please visit TechTarget.