

Using machine learning to make work 'suck a little less'

Workers are bombarded with a steady stream of emails, instant messages and requirements to log onto different systems to do such basic tasks as requesting vacation and filing expense reports. Read about what Citrix is doing to quiet the digital noise and power a better way to work.

To read this article, please visit CNN.com