

When will workers feel comfortable about returning to the office?

In a new Citrix survey, employees say they will demand strict measures, such as face masks in the office, to ensure safety to return to work.

Millions have spent the past two months working from home in an effort to curb the spread of the virus. As stay-at-home orders lift, organizations are likely to encounter cautious employees concerned about the prospect of heading back into the office.

To read the article, please visit The Business Journals.