

IT must prep for the rise of the hybrid team

Phased reopenings are on the horizon, so IT pros must prepare for a hybrid team approach -- with some employees in the office and others at home.

Enterprises are beginning to reopen their offices, but the process will not be a sudden event. To accommodate this phased approach, IT professionals will have to find ways to meet the needs of a hybrid team, in which employees could be at home, in the office or a mix of the two.

To read the article, please visit TechTarget.