

What Workers Want from the Future of Work

New research from Citrix explores what that world might look like for workers around the world. And it suggests that workers will be increasingly looking for things like flexible work, diversity and inclusion, and the latest digital tools. They also want companies to have a clear purpose.

To read the article, please visit The Horizons Tracker.